Late Quaternary Climate Change and Human Adaptation in Arid China D.B. Madsen 2011-09-22 Due to political pressures, prior to the 1990s little was known about the nature of human foraging adaptations in the deserts, grasslands, and mountains of north western China during the last glacial period. Even less was known about the transition to agriculture that followed. Now open to foreign visitation, there is now an increasing understanding of the foraging strategies which led both to the development of millet agriculture and to the utilization of the extreme environments of the Tibetan Plateau. This text explores the transition from the foraging societies of the Late Paleolithic to the emergence of settled farming societies and the emergent pastoralism of the middle Neolithic striving to help answer the diverse and numerous questions of this critical transitional period. * Examines the transition from foraging societies of the Late Paleolithic to the emergence of settled farming societies and the emergent pastoralism of the middle Neolithic * Explores explanatory models for the links between climate change and cultural change that may have influenced the development of millet agriculture * Reviews the relationship between climate change and population expansions and contradictions during the late Quaternary

The Treasury of Geography ... By William Hughes [or, Rather, Designed and Begun by S. Maunder and Completed by W. Hughes] ... New Edition Samuel MAUNDER 1875

Regional Integration in Africa Hamdy A. Hassan 2011

Regional Integration in Africa Bridging the North-Sub-Saharan Divide came about as a research project conducted by the Africa Institute of South Africa and examines the North African countries' strategies of involvement in the African continent, and their integration initiatives. The book looks at major issues involving Egypt, Libya, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco and Mauritania. These countries, in most cases, have been treated as separate from sub-Saharan Africa. However, the historical reality and economic and political interests indicate that the North African countries have been and still are closely connected with the rest of the African continent. Egypt, for example, was one of the leading countries in the African unity movement, and, together with Libya, has contributed to the restructuring of the African continental organisation and the establishment of the African Union. The book consists of two parts. The first part includes five chapters written in English, the second part of the book comprises six chapters written in Arabic.

Sino-Mongolian Relations, 1949-2004

Shakti Madhok 2005 "Relations between two sovereign and neighbourly states is always a ticklish problem, Mongolia a country landlocked between China on the one side and Russia on the other had a hoary and belligerent past. In thirteenth and fourteenth centuries it ruled over almost one - third of the civilized world including China. Mongolia's relationship with China had a chequered history and in fact it always needed an extraordinary efforts on the part of Mongolia to maintain correctâ if not cordial ties wirh China. (Excerpts from the book). China being a civilizational state has had a foreign affairs agenda of its own. At times it was tune in with the rest of the Socialist bloc but most of the time it followed an independent line. Political dominance of the Soviet Union over Mongolia was not acceptable to China which had exercised suzerain rights over Mongolia for more than a century. The situation became worse after the Sino- Soviet schism and Mongolia toeing the Soviet line. Mongolia tried to play China against the Soviet Union and vice-versa to meet its security requirements and overcome its economic under-development and above all to maintain its distinct identity in the comity of nations. Traditionally being a center of both Pan - Buddhist and Pan - Mongol movements, it tried to maintain cultural togetherness with both the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region of China and the Buryat Soviet Socialist Republic of the Soviet Union. In the post-Mao period, the Sino-Soviet schism was perceived as a Maoist fallacy and earnest attempts were made by the post-Mao genre of Chinese leaders to free foreign policy from Maoist agenda. This coupled with openness in the Soviet Union resulted in normalization of Sino-Soviet relations. How this contributed to normalization of relations between China and Mongolia and the subsequent emergence of Mongolia as a democratic state is brought out at length in this study. The last chapter also throws light on what can be the future prospects for relations between two neighbours China and Mongolia. "
